

Express Yourself! Summer Theatre Arts Camp for middle school students

August 20 - 23, 2007

9:15 - 12:45

Freedom Park Indoor Pavilion

2435 Cumberland Ave.

Cost is 150.00

Sponsored by the Center for Creativity & Healing

Explore your creativity, spontaneity and personal style by participating in improvisational drama and movement games. Experience different forms of theatre for social change while delving into relevant social issues of concern to you! Participants will select a theme and create a performance piece for a sharing on the last day of camp. No previous theatre experience is necessary, only a willingness to experiment and share your ideas.

Benefits of participating include:

- Improving your communication and presentation skills
- Creating and collaborating with other kids
- Increasing your problem-solving and decision-making skills
- Expanding your self-confidence
- Making new friends
- Having fun!

Participants should dress in loose, comfortable clothing suitable for movement activities, and bring a snack and water bottle. Family and friends are invited to a sharing on Thursday, August 23 at noon.

For more information or to register: 704-523-5567 or got our website www.thecenterforcreativityandhealing.com

A 75.00 deposit must accompany registration. Refunds will be granted minus 25.00 processing if requested prior to May 25, 2007.